WASHINGTON CITY, 3rd February. The belief is growing in diplomatic circles that the action of the senate in attaching to the new Japanese treaty a provise that it may be terminated in one year's notice after it goes into effect will operate to defeat the treaty, and it can be stated on good authority that in its present shape the entire treaty will be rejected by the Japanese government, it transpires that the senate was influenced in this action, not by any fear that the interests or liberties of American citizens in Japan would suffer by making. them subject to Japanese laws and relinquish the right to extra-territorial jurisdiction, for this clause does not go into effect until five years have clapsed. The sound reason was founded in tariff consideration. By the treaty the United States allowed Japan within thirty days after its ratification to fix her own tariff charges on imports from the United States, instead of bolding her to the old treaty, by the terms of which the United States itself fixed the rate at one figure-5 per cent. ad valorem on all imports. In thus admitting Japan's right to fix Vicercy Li to Mr. Bourns on the 28th October, her own tariff schedules, the United States went 893, a certified translation of which is here, further than Great Britain or any other great The Japanese looked upon our action with great nations. The little amendment, which at Arst glanes seems inconsequential, really means much to Japan, for it is said to touch the founds-14 - hat your putitioner in consequence most tion of her whole projected new-tariff system. The draft of the laws necessary to put this into offeet has been, already prepared, awaiting should accept the amendment she will ing proceeded under the new tariff for a short time and in the meantime, baving negotisted trade relations with other nations. Japan might be suddenly notified by the United States of the termination of the treaty in one year. The relations of the two countries would then revert to those prevailing under the present treaty, and that would immediately make all duties on United States imports into Japan only 5 per cent. This itself would seriously disarrange the Japanese revenues, but the secondary affect would be worse, for immediately every other nation with which Japan was in treaty relations would claim the benefits of the favoured nation clause and secure the 5 per cent. rate, thus completely destroying the Japanese revenue system. Insamuch as it had been for many years the object of the most advanced Japanese people to relieve their people from the heavy burden of internal and direct taxation to which they are now subjected for the raising of revenues for the support of the government, the possibility of thus wrecking all their hopes by one slight amondment of the treaty, if inwrited by the other nations to similar treaties, it is said by diplomats acquainted with the views of Japan, could not be contemplated by the Jupanese government with anything less than
